pens – we lose them more than we use them! We trash them instead of bothering to buy new refills. Realising the fact that these millions of small writing instruments sold daily are made of plastic and contribute to the degradation of the environment, to enlighten, to provide a solution, the Department of Economics organized a practical session where I'm fortunate to take a session to the pupils.

The Head of the Department Prof. Francis M C addressed the students and faculties, and then the session begun. The students were so responsive and synergistic to learn how to make 'Pen-Tree'. The motive behind the session is to improve their skillset with love for the environment and to create crafted pens made from waste paper. At the bottom of each pen, we buried a seed of a tree. Once a pen has been used up, it can be just be planted into the soil. The seed will sprout from the bottom of the pen. In one shot, these pens achieve up-cycling of paper, plastic waste reduction, and tree plantation. The session was carried out on 22th July at Room no:322 by 2 PM. The student instructor was Divyasree. S (III B.A. Economics)
