

SORRY

World Environment Day was celebrated by the Department of Commerce by distributing saplings to faculty and students, along with conducting various other initiatives such as to promote sustainable practices. Days of Observation are only reminders of the immense amount of work the institution has to be continually engaged in. Departments individually, and the college as a collective of observe and celebrate these days with extensive activities. 102 students and 10 faculty took part in this initiative.

