Inauguration

The initiative was embarked on in the presence of the chief guest of the day Prof. Richard Hay (Member of Parliament), Rev. Fr. Antony Arakkal (Manager), Dr. M. L. Joseph (Principal), Rev. Fr. Martin Azhikkakath, Dr. V.S. Sadhanandhan (Vice principal), Dr. Tia Mathews (HOD, Dept. of Commerce)

In his welcome Address, Dr. M.L. Joseph said that it is an attempt to coordinate different departments to rebuild Kerala in a sustainable manner. He also assured that it will act for the state as a compilation of practical solutions.

Rev. Fr. Antony Arakkal presented a worthwhile message that Kerala is our home. He attempted to bring to the minds of all an idea of brotherhood and also made his attempt to retain the unity that the state showed to face the calamity. He said “Kerala is our home. It is our duty to rebuild the home, when it is devastated”

In his inaugural address, Prof. Richard Hay, Member of Parliament remarked ‘Rebuild Kerala 2018’ first of its kind in the state. “Road to recovery will be long and hard. Resilience of civil society is remarkable; they must be appreciated. I believe that the seminar could address social, economic, environmental, and psychological impact on Kerala. Protection of Western Ghats is the first thing to do. It is the gift of nature to Kerala.” He remarked. He also commemorated the fishermen for their bravery.

Session I – Resource management, conservation, and sustainability

Prof. Dr. Reena Mathew (Head, Rice Research centre, Mankombu) spoke on the impact the flood had on the natural resources of the state. She said “The flood led to complete depletion of oxygen in the soil which thereby led to nutrient imbalance in the soil. There was leaching of nutrients for the soil. Being a native of Kuttanad, I opine that Flash floods are beneficial to Kuttanad as it regains the fertility of soil. Land Slides that occurred in the hills caused the loss of micro organisms.”

Dr. Harikrishnan (Director, School of industrial fisheries ,CUSAT) spoke on the cuts that the flood caused on the fisheries and aquatic resources of the state. He remarked that the unprecedented flood has greatly affected the Inland fish production. This sector which is diverse by its nature and hence cannot be studied like marine fisheries. As a result the accurate measures of loss in this sector cannot be estimated.

Dr. Sudhodhanan (Former deputy director, Animal husbandry and consultant to NABARD) talked on the ill effects of flood on the animal husbandry. Animal husbandry is the livelihood of rural and tribal sector of the state. Micro enterprises run by women mainly consists of animal husbandry. The development of organic farming and family farming is rooted in animal husbandry. Hence immediate steps must be taken to retrieve this sector back to normal. The role of students and youth is valuable in this process because development of our state is the need of the generations to come. Kerala model development program is worthwhile in this situation. WHO initiative of one health programme and Mobile ambulance veterinary services will help in this scenario. Resource mobilization and appropriate management and utilization of creative ideas can bring forth effective changes in the sector.

Prof. M.K. Prasad (former Pro vice chancellor, Calicut University) enumerated the effects of flood on the ecosystem of the state. He stated that the flood was the result of the man's attempt to rebuild his own environment. Nature must be seen as a life.

Dr. (Sr.) Annie Sheela spoke on the medical and health care mechanisms to be adopted in the flood affected regions as well as in the state as a whole. The society is mainly affected in two ways by the flood- direct affects due to the flood water and indirect affects due to further damages. The disaster has greatly increased the morbidity and mortality rate. Infections due to poor sanitation, overcrowding, vector borne diseases and rodent borne diseases put the life of the survived in danger. Most common and fatal is leptospirosis. It is also hard to recover from the mental trauma the flood has put on the lives of the affected. She also mentioned on the need to stick on to the vaccination and chlorination of water. Medical camps and counselling sessions have turned out to be the need of the hour.

Session II – Recovery and flood impact management

This session included discussions on the aftermath of flood. Talk dealt with each class of the society. This session produced the need and ways to rebuild the keralite society.

Dr. Edward Edezhath (former syndicate member, Sanskrit university, Kalady) talked on education and counselling. He said that the initial attempt to rebuild the mind of each keralite starts with the education sector. Government intended to start the education institutions as usual, keeping this vision in mind. Many schools that were the relief camps have to be renovated to bring them back as it was before. Health education and counseling programmes have to be arranged in all spheres of the society. Not just workers but the bystanders and rescue workers need counseling in the wake of flood. State must be vigilant by providing timely support information and information on allied services.

6.5.1 - Incremental improvements with regard to quality

Sri. Xavier Thomas Kondody (State council Member CII and managing partner, Sanson chemical industry, Kottayam) provided a wide range of information on the effects of flood on MSMEs and the ignorance from the part of authorities in this regard. He reiterated that this sector is one of the most income generating sector of the country. Losses are innumerable and plans are made for the recovery, but state or initiative have not come to the practical side of it. He reminded failing to plan is planning to fail.

Adv. Sherry J. Thomas(General Secretary,KLCA) detailed on the disaster management act,2005. The activities of the local self government inorder to rebuild kerala after the havoc were informed by Adv. Yesudas Parapilly(President, Ernakulam Block Panchayath). Sri. Vivek Krishna Govind C.A. (Managing partner, Varma and Varma) talked on the increasing accrued loss. He also mentioned about the crowd outsourcing model by KPMG.

Session III – Rehabilitation plan

This session included the information that was the need of the hour – the rehabilitation ideas. The session began with the talk of Sri. PC Cyriac IAS (Former addi. Chief secretary, Government of Tamil Nadu). He commented “ Kerala society raised to a level, which no one expected to reach. Society rose to one man to cop up with the calamity.” Appreciating the men and women of kerala, he said, “This happened not because of the political leadership, but the young, old, men, women rose. If all had played their role, it would have been more efficiently handled. What was done was great ; It is unparalleled.”

Smt. Sindhu NT produced valuable information on the concept of ecotown and village infrastructure. Dr. Vijayakumar(Emeritus professor,CUSAT) Switched the listeners brains to the ideas of alternative energy sources that are ecofriendly without much use of land.

6.5.1 - Incremental improvements with regard to quality

Sri. C.R. Neelakandan (Environmentalist) opened the eyes of his listeners saying “See the river as a live entity that wishes to enjoy all freedom as other living beings.” He also said that Survival planning is more important than Urban planning and also added that no plan will survive if climate change is not taken into concern.” Sri. Sunilal P.B.(Deputy collector) gave a detailed statement on the schemes and plans the government has adopted to fight the distress caused by the flood. Sri. Anil Joseph cleared doubts on the town planning and structural safety that must be ensured in the future to reduce destructions that can cost even human lives.

The conference that last for a day, was a treasure of information to sustain the current losses, prevent similar destructions in the future, and to head towards rebuilding a state in a sustainable manner for a prosperous future.

Albertian Knowledge Webinar Series (2020-2021)

2 July, 2020 to 24 January 2021

For educators, the COVID-19 Pandemic was a quintessential adaptive and transformative challenge, one for which there was no preconfigured playbook that could guide appropriate responses. The College had to swiftly design responses – and with specific contexts in mind – as the pandemic ran its course. It was in this context that the second phase of the Albertian Knowledge Webinar Series was conducted. The webinars touched over a rich library of curriculum-aligned lessons in subjects including languages, math, science, technology, humanities, among others.

The Albertian Centre for Human Resource Development and Research in association with The Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC), St.Albert's College (Autonomous), Ernakulam conducted Albertian Knowledge Webinar series starting from 17th April, 2020. As a continuation to this, the 32nd Webinar was on Demystifying ESG Investing by Dr. Erik P M Vermeulen, Professor of Business and Financial Law, Director, International Business Law program Tilburg University, Netherlands on 2nd July 2020.

The 33rd Webinar of the series is on Digital Strategies that Work: COVID19 in Context by Prof. Babu George, Professor & Associate Dean, School of Business, Christian Brothers University, Tennessee, United States on Saturday, the 12th of September 2020.

6.5.1 - Incremental improvements with regard to quality

The 34th Webinar of the series is on Questionnaire Design and Data Analysis by Dr. Vineeth K M, Assistant Professor, Department of Commerce, Government College, Tripunithura on Wednesday, 14th October, 2020.

The 35th session of the Albertian Knowledge Webinar Series was held on 24 October, 2020, co-hosted by the Department of Social Work. The theme was – UN-75 2020 and Beyond: Shaping our Future Together. There were 2 speakers for the day. Their names and topics are as follows –

1. Alen John Samuel, SDG Officer at the United Nations – UN SDG – Decade of Action: Ten Years to Transform Our World.
2. Prof. Nithin Ramakrishnan, Assistant Professor in International Law, School of Ethics, Governance, Culture and Social System, Chinmaya ViswaVidyapeeth Deemed University – The United Nations Systems.

The 41st installation of the Albertian Knowledge Webinar Series was organised in association with the Department of Software Development on 24 January, 2021. The session was handled by Fr. Roby Kannachira CMI, Motivational and Inspirational Speaker and NGO Representative for UN World Peace Council on the topic Accept, Respect and Celebrate Diversity.

MR. ABHISHEK CLIFFORD
Ethics Lecturer
CEO, RESCUE (NGO)
London, UK

Cyber ethics concerns to the code of responsible behavior on the Internet. The responsible behavior on the internet in many ways aligns with all the right behavior in everyday life, but the results can be significantly different. With the increase of youngsters using the internet, it is now very essential than ever to educate them about how to properly operate the internet and its dangers. This webinar helped youngsters to stir clear of destructive web sites, have good long-lasting healthy friendships, learn how to protect themselves from destructive relationships and understand why some of the traditional values in India were superior ways of abundant life. This was been planned with the view of making students responsible citizens who would stand for the truth and fight against contemporary evils of today's society, uphold the dignity of the nation and have moral accountability.

The Webinar on “Research Methodology- Project Report Preparation and Scientific Paper Writing” was organized by the Research Department of Fisheries and Aquaculture in association with the Office of Dean Research and Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC), on 23rd March, 2021. The webinar commenced at 11.00 a.m. A total of 92 participants attended the webinar.

6.5.1 - Incremental improvements with regard to quality

The webinar started off with a Prayer Song by Aparna Das of IIIrd B.Sc. Aquaculture. It was followed by the Welcome Speech by Hansha Hashim, of IInd year, M.Sc. Applied Fisheries and Aquaculture. Following which Dr. Viji CS, Assistant Professor, Research Department of Fisheries and Aquaculture introduced the Resource Person of the day Dr. Reshma Gills, Scientist, Socio Economic Evaluation and Technology Transfer Division, ICAR-CMFRI, Kochi, to the gathering.

Dr. Reshma Gills, initiated her discourse by giving a detailed and vivid introduction on the subject matter of the day's topic – Research Methodology. Through her talk she gave a deeper perception on the concept of a project proposal and how to write a project proposal in an effective manner. In addition to the project proposal, Dr. Reshma also detailed project reports. She covered the points like what is intended by a project report, the different types and how to construct a report.

Other spheres she familiarized were thesis writing and paper writing. Besides, Dr. Reshma stressed on the issues of plagiarism. She introduced to the audience, app tools like, Grammarly for error free and hassle free writing.

Being an ace in the topic of discussion, she handled the session with ease which turned out to be very informative and worth listening to. The formal session wound up with a vote of thanks by Cinsta K.T of 1st B.Sc. Aquaculture. The resource person, Dr. Reshma expressed her gratitude to both the Head of the Department, Dr. Ajith Thomas John and Convenor of the program Sivakumar G., Assistant Professor, Research Department of Fisheries & Aquaculture for inviting her as the speaker of the session.

The screenshot shows a Microsoft PowerPoint presentation titled "The Research Paper Checklist". The slide content is as follows:

The Research Paper Checklist

- My introduction presents my topic with the necessary background information.
- The research problem is very well focused and explained.
- My paper is logically organized using paragraphs and section headings.
- Each paragraph is relevant to my research problem and have used appropriate transition words.
- My conclusion provides a concise answer to the research questions and also how it has added knowledge to the existing knowledge.

The presentation is being viewed in a video player, with a timestamp of 0:10 / 1:08:18. A small video inset on the right shows a woman with the name "rajalakshmi prithviraj" below her.

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY RIGHTS WITH SPECIAL EMPHASIS TO SOFTWARE INDUSTRY

The Department of Software Development in association with the Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC) organized an online session on “Intellectual property Rights with special emphasis to software industry” for the Students and Faculties. Intellectual property (IP) laws have had an important impact on the software industry's success. IP protection has given software developers the incentive to invest in developing and marketing new programs by providing a legal mechanism through which developers can capture at least some of their software's value-whatever that may be in the marketplace. Without IP protection, second-comers could simply copy the innovation and thereby appropriate at least some portion of its economic value, without having to bear any related development costs. Mr. Bruce Mathew, Head i/c, Software Development coordinated the programme. There were a total of 39 participants including 3 teaching faculty members and 36 students. The session was led by Dr. Asif E, Assistant Professor [Law], National University of Advanced Legal Studies (NUALS), Kerala.

The importance and purpose of Intellectual property Rights was discussed in this session. The Speaker of the Session Dr. Asif E presented the keynote address on “Intellectual property Rights with special emphasis to software industry”. Sudeshna Nath, Student, B.Voc Software Development presented the Welcome Speech. Intellectual property rights are at the root of the software industry. Innovations made in the software products can quintessentially be protected by patents, copyrights and trademarks. Patents and copyrights provide protection to the software itself. On the other hand, Trademarks protect the names or symbols used to create a distinguishable identity in the marketplace.

Copyright protection generally extends to protect the expression of any idea, but not the mere idea itself. The application of copyright protection for software products was established internationally via the World Trade Organization's (WTO) Agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPs). In the case of Software, the protection provided Copyright is basically on the source and object code along with certain unique and original elements of the user interface. The copyright owner holds a bunch of exclusive rights preventing unauthorized using, making, selling or distributing copies of the work. Violation of any of the exclusive rights will lead to infringement of copyright and such violation is subject to liability for damages or statutory fines. Article 27 of the TRIPS Agreement makes patent protection available to inventions in all fields of technology, only if they meet the minimum requirements of novelty, utility and non-obviousness. The protection offered by patent is wider than that of copyright, as copyright protection extends only to a specific expression whereas patent protection extends to the underlying functionality of an invention. Because patents can offer broader protection than copyrights, they turn out to be more valuable if they can be obtained. Jerin P F, Student, B.Voc Software Development presented the vote of thanks.

Future Scope & Conclusion

Although IP laws have had an important influence on the software industry, technological advances by software developers have likewise had a strong influence on IP laws. This process of mutual influence illustrates IP laws' ability to evolve in the face of change, but has also forced software developers constantly to reevaluate how best to protect their programs against third-party appropriation. All the participants got an overview of Intellectual property Rights and its importance in the software industry. The volume of questions asked and answered clearly gave an idea about the understanding of the topic. The discussion that followed was a true proof of the benefit the participants received from the topic.

WEBINAR ON INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY RIGHTS

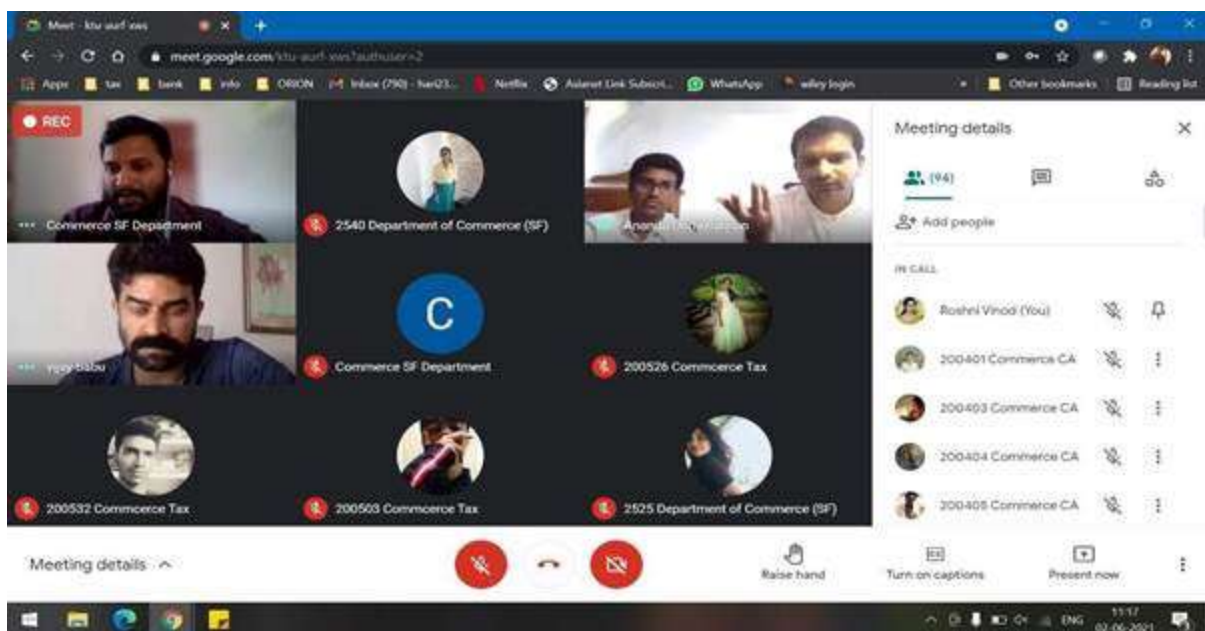

The Department of Commerce (SF), in association with the Office of Dean-Academics and Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC) of St. Albert's College (Autonomous) Ernakulam, conducted a Webinar on the topic 'Intellectual Property Rights' on June 2nd, 2021 in the Google Meet platform.

Adv. Vijay V Paul, Mr. Vijay Babu Actor/Producer and Adv. Anandu were the Chief Guests of the webinar. 2nd year and 3rd year students attended the webinar.

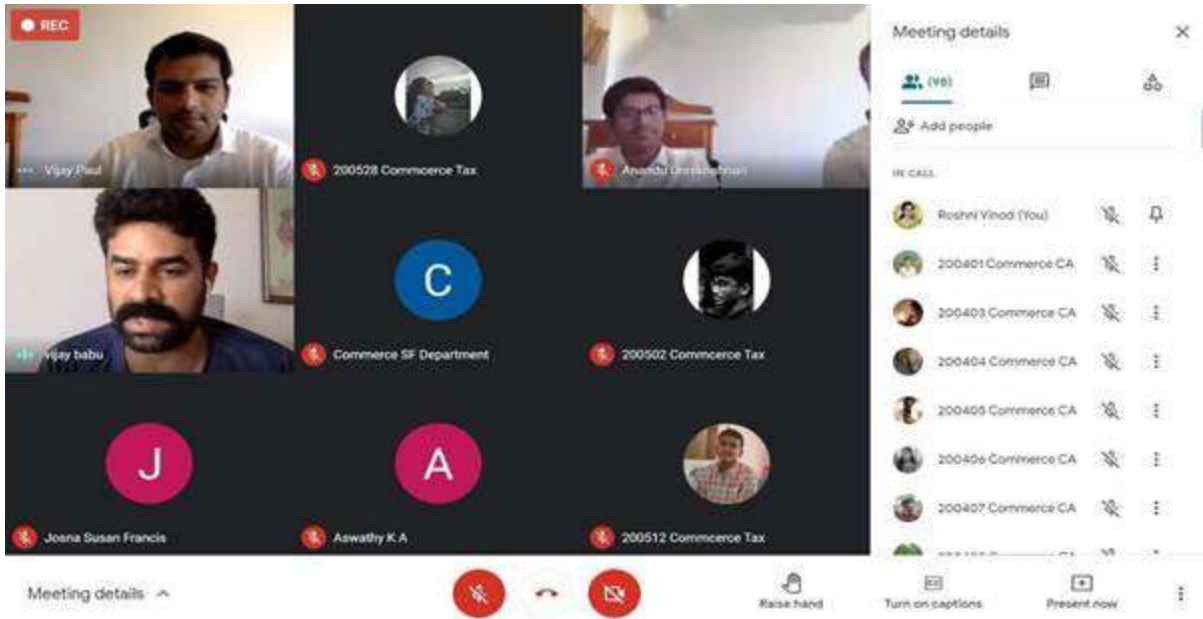

Adv. Vijay Paul gave a brief idea about different features and categorisation of IPR. He talked about the different types of intellectual properties that are protected by providing these IPR rights like songs, films etc. He also pointed out the recent conflicts in these areas by providing different examples.

The presentation was continued by the second speaker Adv. Anandu. He briefed the students about tax related aspects of Intellectual Property and the applications of both direct (Income Tax) and indirect tax (GST).

The final Q&A session was handled by Mr. Vijay Babu.
