Towards Excellence

Vol No. 3 | 2020 - 21

The virus invisible to the naked eye kept the entire world for almost a year in a state of terror, apprehension, angst and emotional anguish. From closure of educational institutions to devastated industries and millions of jobs lost – the social and economic costs of the pandemic were many and varied. The pandemic is still threatening to widen inequalities everywhere, undermine progress on global poverty and clean energy, and more. Societies around us are not what they were supposed to be. Social distancing has dissociated one's interpersonal relationships not only at the work-front but also in one's personal life. Life has become a virtual reality. Most of all, the vulnerably affected are the students and their education. The pandemic widened pre-existing opportunity and achievement gaps, hitting disadvantaged students hardest.

Initially, schools and colleges started to organise their workspaces, gradually getting used to the “new normal”. Higher education has been evolving for a long time and efforts were made to use technology to the best of its abilities. Since Information and Communication Technology (ICT) gained power and prominence during the pandemic various ICT platforms were explored to engage students meaningfully.

St. Albert's College (Autonomous) did not leave any stone unturned and developed her own Learning Management System (<https://elearning.alberts.edu.in/>) helping students to engage in appropriate, mobile, self-paced, and customized content. A well-equipped recording studio, Accordion also was set up and it has become a space for teachers to produce a roster of quality educational content which become a key source of learning for the student community not just limited to the College.

The IQAC provides generic standards and guidelines for Quality Assurance in all Departments/Offices, which are seen as references for quality activities in internal and external quality assurance. The IQAC tries to achieve excellence in teaching, research, student support, extension and consultancy, with social relevance encompassing organizational structure, procedures, processes and technological resources. As a part of its mandate of developing an all-encompassing quality culture in the College, the newsletter will serve as an important conduit in the effort of spreading important information of the College and its activities on a periodic basis.

INNOVATIVE TEACHING METHODS

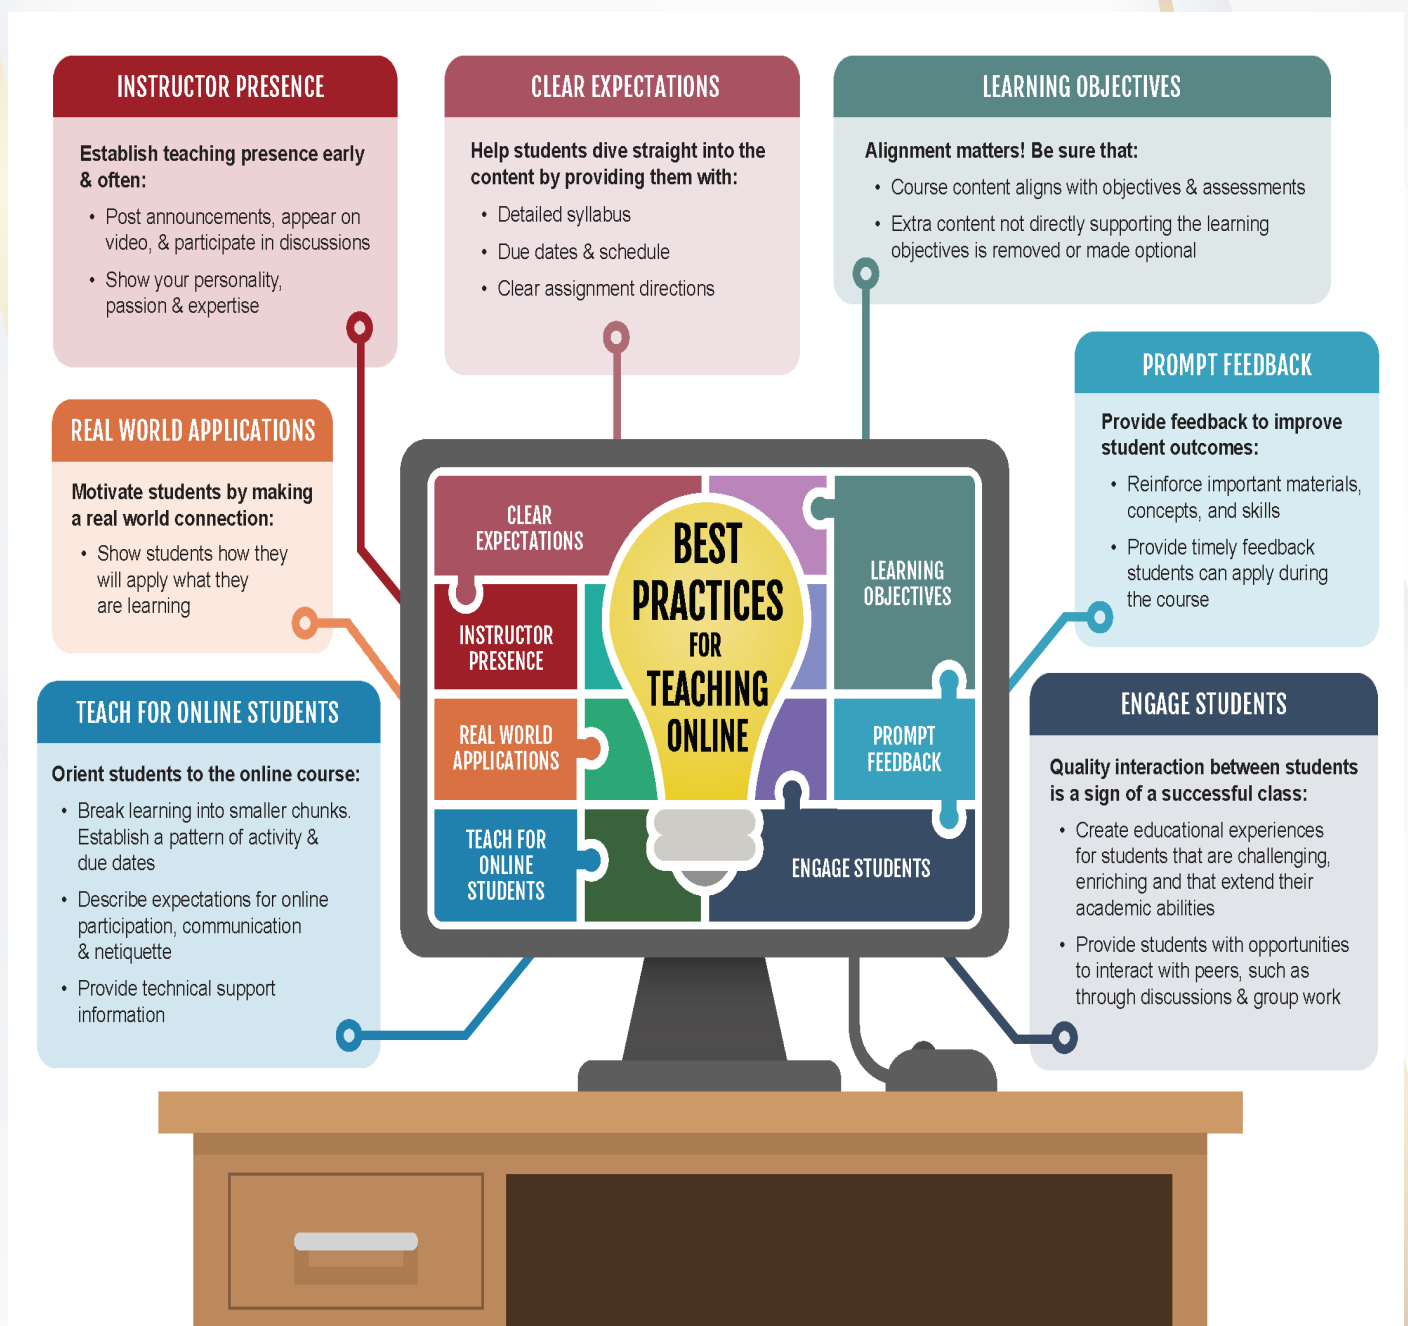

Since the quality of education is of paramount importance, the teachers of the College delved deep and challenged a number of traditional strategies and methods of teaching-learning. They used technology as well as the latest pedagogical tools to encourage students to think out-of-the-box and innovate in and out of the classroom. They experimented at integrating different subjects and giving hands-on experience in science, IT, arts, and mathematics. Projects were assigned to individual students based on their interests and capability and students were encouraged to develop different life skills, thereby inculcating innovation and unleashing the creativity of students.

Introduction and application of innovative teaching-learning methods in education allowed students to expand their minds and develop skills outside the textbooks. Efforts were taken to stimulate a spirit of learning in students not only while at college but also as lifelong process.

Innovative methods such as short lectures, simulation, role-playing, personalized learning, flip learning, inquiry-based learning, brainstorming, case analysis, portfolio development, blended learning and problem-based learning (PBL) were found to be very efficient in addressing the issues due to the rapid technological advancement. It also helped in developing workplace environments that would resonate futurity.

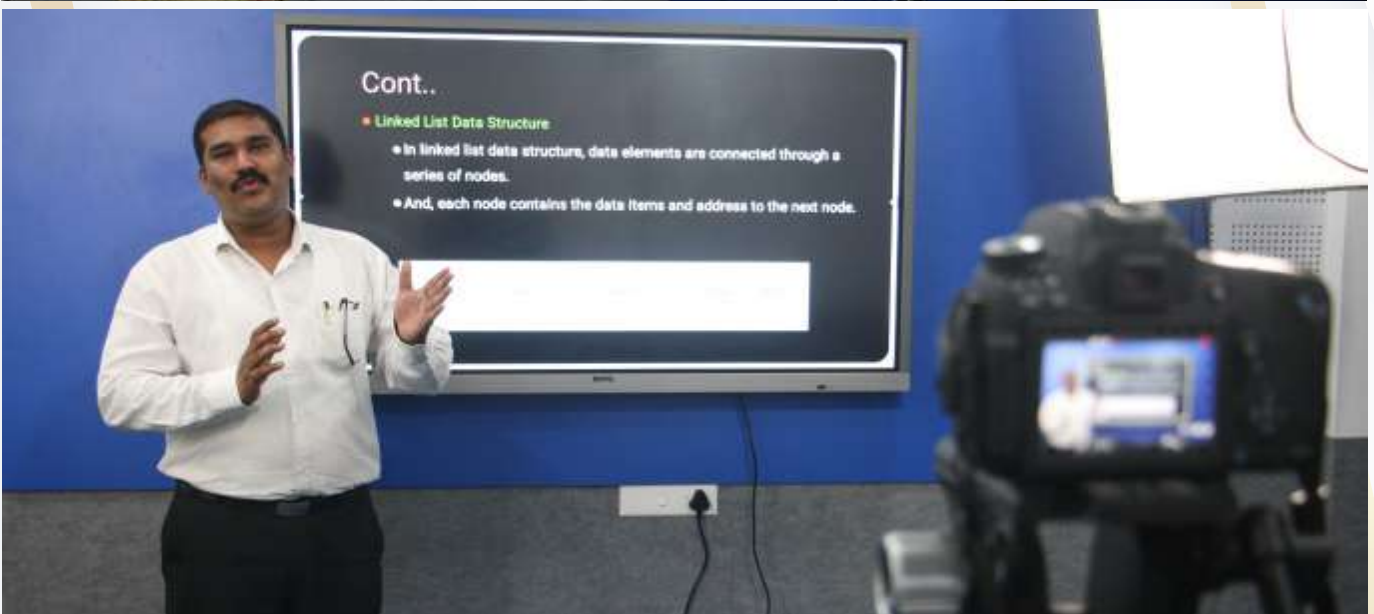

E-RESOURCES

The institution has a state-of-the-art library with a vast collection of books and journals. The library also houses a plethora of e-Resources, ensuring access to national and international journals and other resources aiding the learning and researching processes of the staff and students. The college is subscribed to the J-Gate Discovery Platform for Social Sciences & Management, Arts & Humanities, Basic Sciences, Agricultural & Biological Sciences, Engineering, Technology and Biomedical Sciences. These library resources ensure visibility and usage of all the subscribed journal resources to all staff members, students and research scholars of the institution.

The institution is also subscribed to the National Library and Information Services Infrastructure of Scholarly Content (N-LIST) and all the categories of online content which come under its purvey. Every member of staff and student develops a profile with it, enabling access to a wide content of resources. Students are encouraged to use these online resources to increase the quality of their subject assignments and introduce themselves to the nature of research work. The college also has an institutional subscription to Plagiarism Checker.

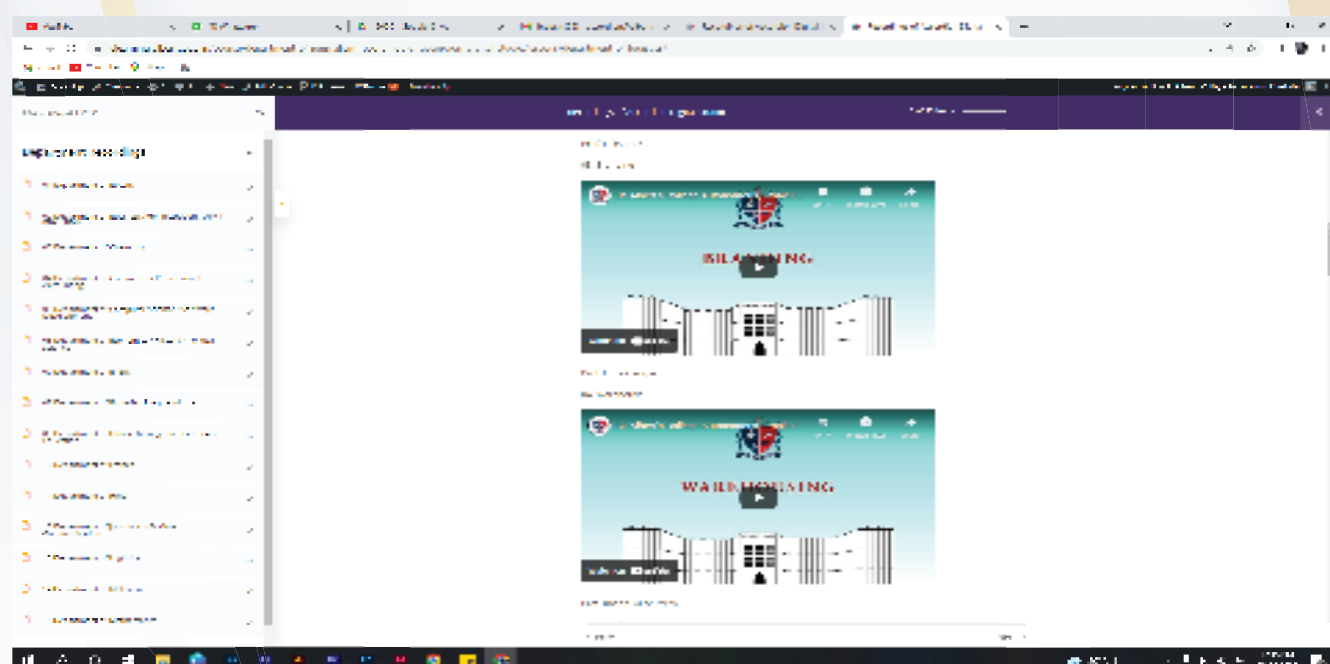

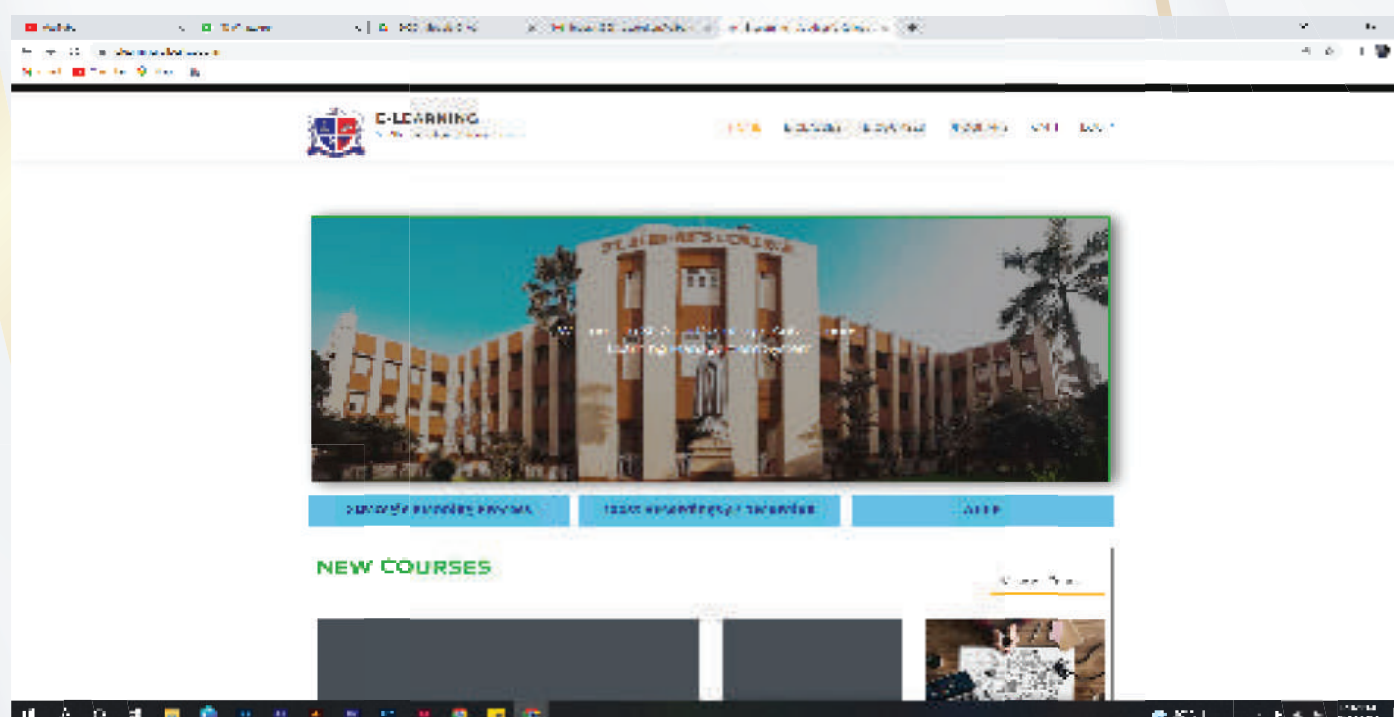

Teachers also continue to use other online learning platforms such as Google Classroom, Academia.edu, Openlibrary.org, British Council Library, Poetryfoundation.org, Power Point Presentation, Prezi, YouTube Videos, N-List, EBSCO, Infliibnet, JSTOR, e-Gynkosh, NPTEL, Zoom, Ted-Ed, CMFRI Repository, CIFT Repository, OWL, e-Pathsala, e-Gyankosh, MHRD Virtual Labs, e-Gyankosh, MHRD Virtual Labs, Geogebra, e-Pathsala, Video Classes, e-Sodhdindhu, J-gate, The Society for the Teaching of Psychology, The Association for Psychological Science, The Social Psychology Network, The Society for Community Research and Action, Keynote, MERLOT Psychology Portal, TeachPsychScience.org, The Society for Personality and Social Psychology, John Suler's Site for Teaching Clinical Psychology, Psych Central, CSWE resources, OER Commons, psych.hanover.edu, Open Textbook Library, National Association of Social Workers, SWHELPER - Social Work Helper, School Social Work Association of America, Computational Chemistry Software.

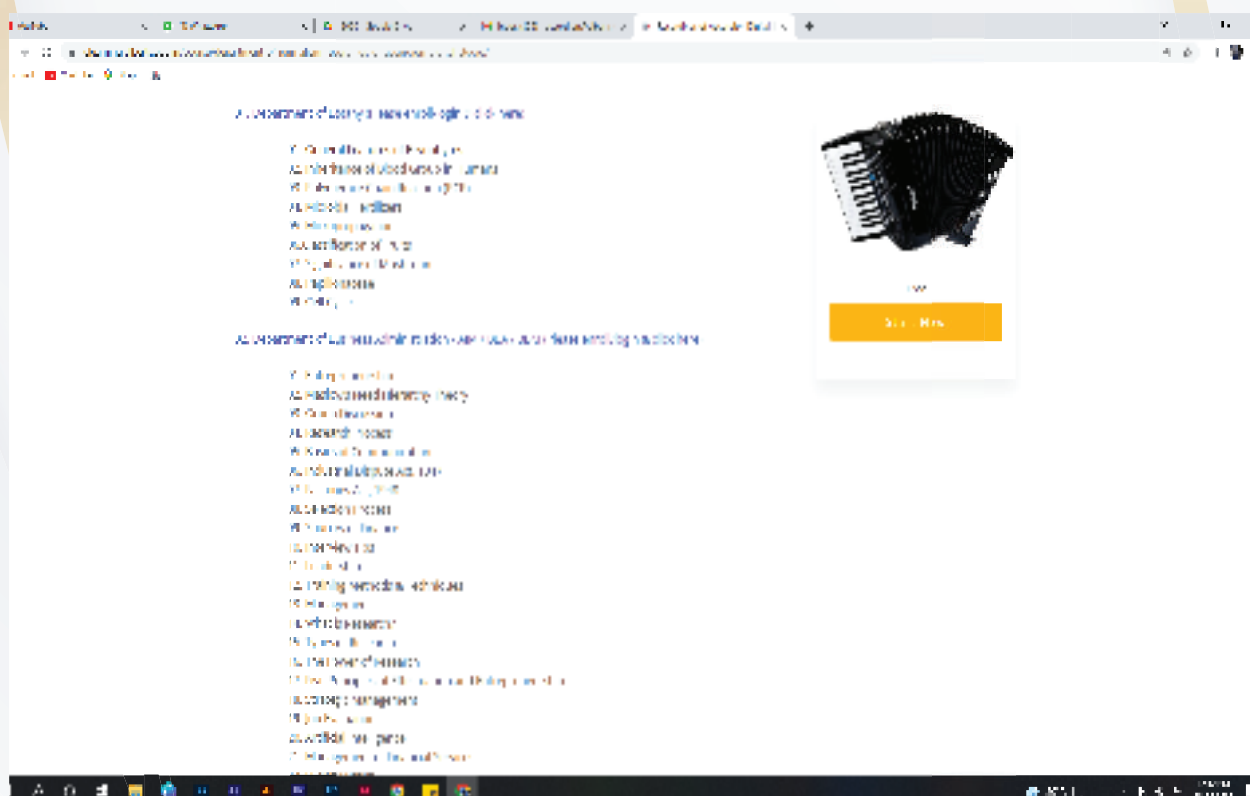

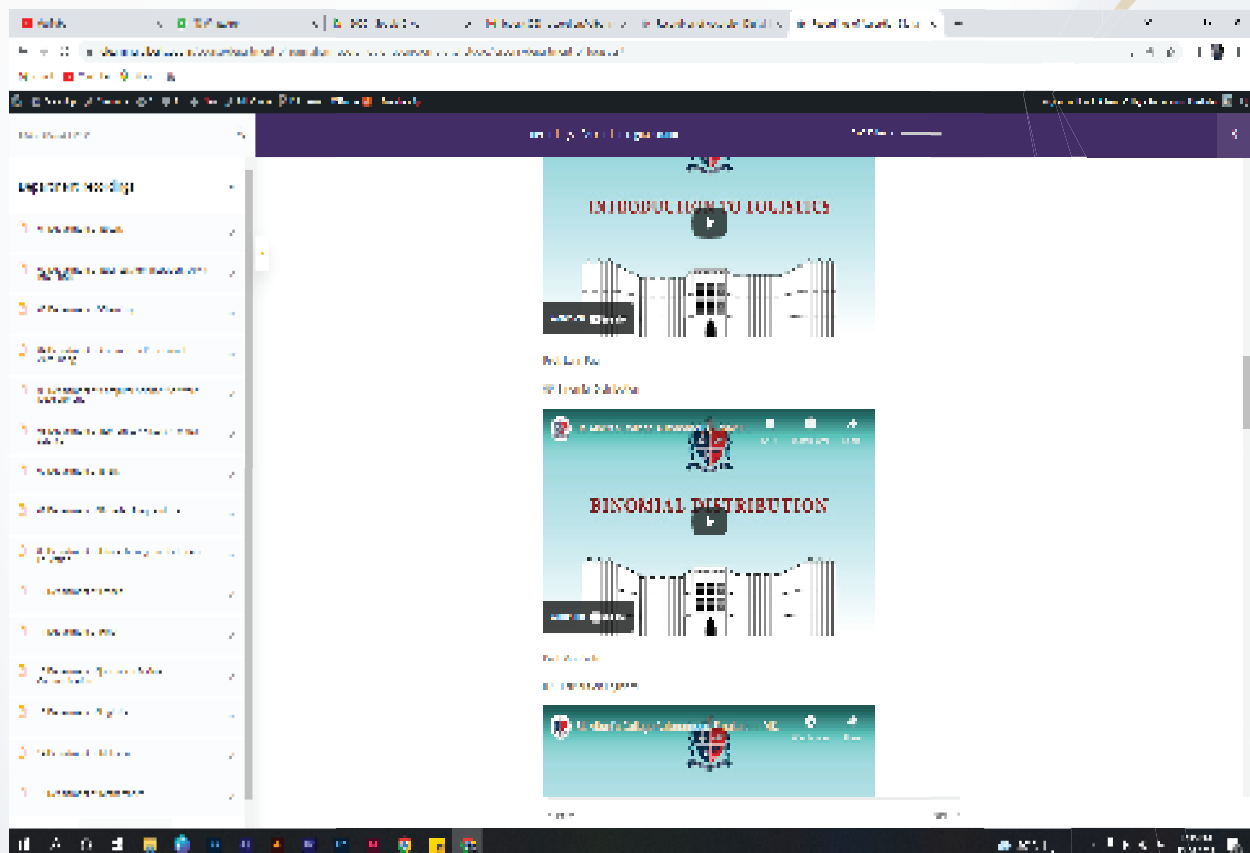

Dedicated towards making education available to all under all circumstances, the college opened Accordion, a fully equipped recording studio with the aim of producing a roster of visual learning media to aid students in the online learning process. Teachers from all the Departments of the college recorded and continue to record 20-30-minute-long videos explaining selected topics from the syllabus, actively aided by PowerPoint presentations and other visual media presented on the smart interactive TV. The unique Albertian English Learning Programme has also been successfully adapted into its e-content version. These materials will play a major role in remaining as easily accessible, ever-evolving pathways of learning, remaining for the use of existing students and the ones to come.

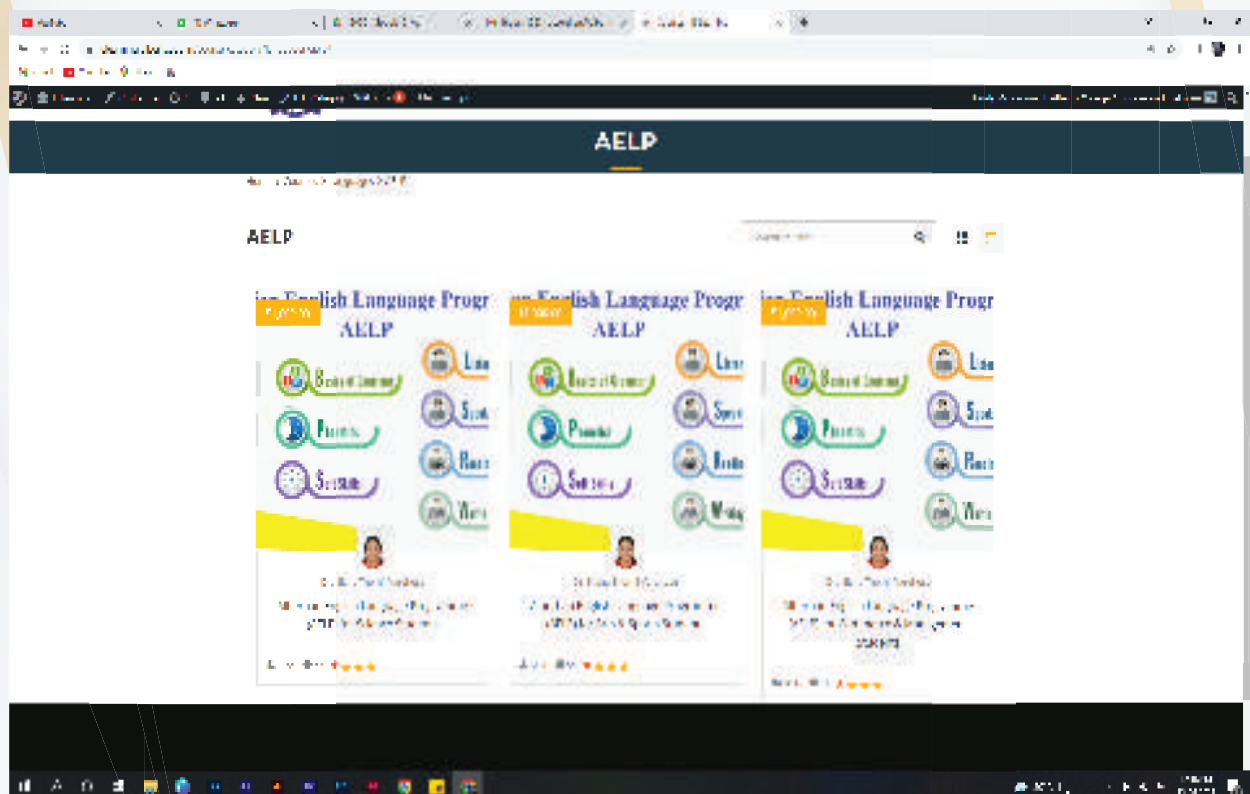

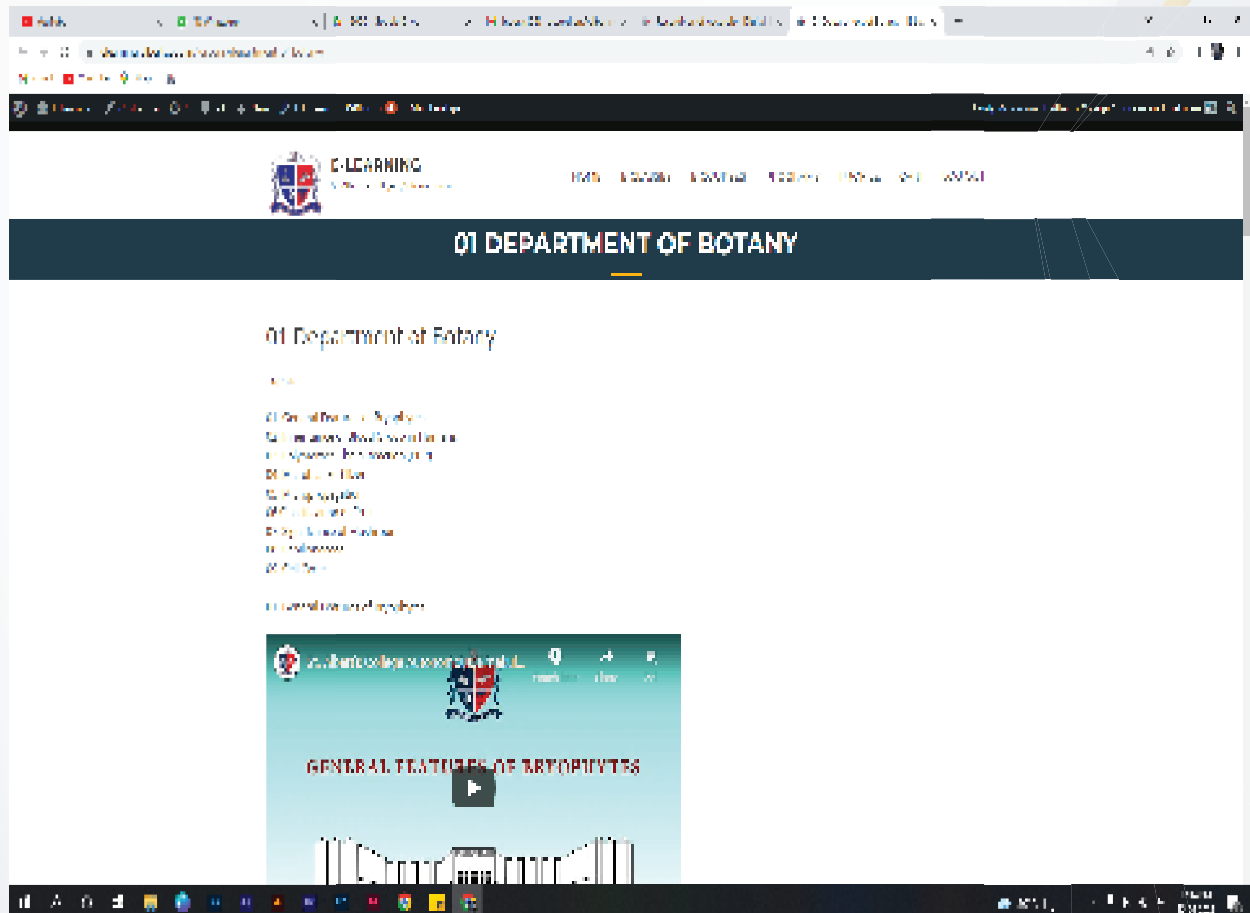

The College also developed a Learning Management System, the Albertian e-Learning Platform, an online learning space for teachers and students which allowed teachers to promptly upload online study materials and recorded classes, thus forming a good corpus of subject material.

The institution installed its first Smart Interactive TV in its very own recording studio, the Accordion, in February, 2020. The videos presented and recorded by the members of staff across the various departments of the college were done with the aid of this Interactive Television. PowerPoints and other media were entirely presented on this Smart TV. Later, the installation of Smart Interactive TVs was expanded to the classrooms, as a one-place-solution ensuring the availability of all online resources at the touch of a finger, aiding teachers in their daily classes, enhancing the visual knowledge capacities of students as well. The quality of student presentations and seminars were also enhanced by this. Currently, around 46 Smart Interactive TVs have been installed and once the process is completed, the institution would be equipped with 80 Smart Interactive TVs.

ALBERTIAN FOUNDATION

UN75
Women and Girls – Closing the Gender Gap

Equality between men and women was a core tenet enshrined in the UN Charter in 1945. Yet, 75 years later, women and girls live in a world of widespread gender inequality. Turning this around is a priority of the UN in 2020 which also marks the 75th anniversary of the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action, the 25th anniversary of Security Council resolution 1325 on Women, Peace, and Security, and the 5th anniversary of the Sustainable Development Goals. The 2030 Agenda is clear: Gender equality and the empowerment of all women and girls is a goal in itself (Sustainable Development Goal 5) as well as a catalyst for the achievement of all the other goals. Ultimately, development will only be sustainable if its benefits accrue equally to both women and men. The world has a decade left to turn this promise into action.

The past decades have seen important progress for women and girls. Overall, however, change has been uneven and incremental. At the current rate of change, the global gender gap will not close for another 100 years. As the UN Secretary-General warned, "change is coming at a pace that is too slow for the women and girls whose lives depend on it". Over the next 10 years, the global community must act with urgency and determination to accelerate progress and achieve gender equality for all women and girls everywhere. At this juncture Albertian Foundation is calling youth to participate in the global dialogue UN-75 Women and Girls - Closing the Gender Gap.

❖ Webinar on Looking Ahead:

Learning and Inspiring Through Uncertain Times on June 18, 2020.

As a global community, human beings collectively shared the experience of the COVID-19 pandemic. The outbreak of a pandemic – and accompanying social isolation – was something that most people had never previously known. As a result, it caused all to feel anxious, confused, unsettled and worried about the future. These were not ordinary times and the academic as well as emotional needs of students demanded much attention. How could teachers function best in this time of social distancing? How could they support students with hope and purpose? While so much remained uncertain about what the future holds for the remainder of the academic year, this webinar helped the teaching community go the extra mile to support students and families and help provide some sense of normalcy at a time when everything had been turned upside down.

E-Learning, the process of sharing knowledge through various channels such as e-books, CDs, webinars and more has revolutionized the conventional method of chalk and board style of learning imparted to the students. E-Learning education makes learning simpler, prolific, and productive. In the fast-paced world of e-learning, the available technologies to make a course new and exciting are always changing, and course content can and should be updated quickly to give students the very latest information. This was the orientation given to the teaching community and the training stressed on keeping up-to-date on industry developments was of the utmost importance.

❖ Cyber Ethics

Cyber ethics concerns to the code of responsible behavior on the Internet. The responsible behavior on the internet in many ways aligns with all the right behavior in everyday life, but the results can be significantly different. With the increase of youngsters using the internet, it is now very essential than ever to educate them about how to properly operate the internet and its dangers. This webinar helped youngsters to stir clear of destructive web sites, have good long-lasting healthy friendships, learn how to protect themselves from destructive relationships and understand why some of the traditional values in India were superior ways of abundant life. This was been planned with the view of making students responsible citizens who would stand for the truth and fight against contemporary evils of today's society, uphold the dignity of the nation and have moral accountability

- ❖ Albertian Knowledge Summit was conducted from- International Conference on Multidisciplinary Research was conducted from March 8 to 30, 2021.

For educators, the COVID-19 Pandemic was a quintessential adaptive and transformative challenge, one for which there was no preconfigured playbook that could guide appropriate responses. The College had to swiftly design responses – and with specific contexts in mind – as the pandemic ran its course. It was in this context that the second phase of the Albertian Knowledge Webinar Series was conducted. The webinars touched over a rich library of curriculum-aligned lessons in subjects including languages, maths, science, technology, humanities, among others.
